

Alessio Bottrighi was born in Piacenza (Italy) on June 16th 1977. In 2002 he got the Laurea in Computer Science at the University of Eastner Piedmont (Italy) with 110/110 and laude. On 2007 he got the PhD in Computer Science at the Universities of Turin (Italy). In 2011 he became a Researcher. In 2016 he became Assistant Professor at DISIT, University of Eastern Piedmont, Alessandria, Italy. The research activity of Alessio Bottrighi regards knowledge representation, decision support systems, temporal databases and medical informatics. He has published more than 50 papers in refereed journals and conference proceedings. His paper "Exceptions Handling within GLARE Clinical Guideline Framework" has been selected among more than 1000 papers, and awarded "distinguished paper" in the American Medical Informatics Association conference held in Chicago, USA, November 2012.